Sandra Laugier is a French philosopher, working on moral philosophy, philosophy of language, philosophy of action and philosophy of science. She is currently a professor at the University of Paris I and Scientific deputy director at the Institute for Humanities and Social Sciences (INSHS, Institut des sciences humaines et sociales) at the French National Centre for Scientific Research, after being a professor at the University of Picardie Jules Verne in Amiens, France (until 2010).

Sandra Laugier extensively worked on J. L. Austin and L. Wittgenstein; she also introduced several aspects of American philosophy to French readers (Emerson, Thoreau, but above others Stanley Cavell). Her recent work focuses on moral philosophy, the ethics of care and gender studies.

Wednesday, April 25, 2012
“The Ethics of Care as a Politics of the Ordinary”
12:00-1:30
Miner Hall, Room 225